Investment of savings, particularly by those not actively engaged in business, is a grave matter.

The complex life of the present day has demonstrated the necessity of trust companies to secure for investments in general the best results. THE INDIANA TRUST COMPANY has the opportunity of a first choice among desirable securities. It is able to place sums varying in amount and conditions.

It solicits consultation and correspondence on this subject. It will give advice and information, or it will undertake the whole management of affairs of this kind.

Total sales of stocks were 160,500 shares. The volume of business on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday was light and the speculation unsettled. Contrary to expectation, in view of the Lehigh Valley strike, the market opened strong and advanced slightly in the early dealings. There was some buying for London account in the arbitrage specialties and covering of short contracts made up the bulk of the local buying. Before long the purchasing movement lost its force and the dealings became feverish and irregular. The industrials sagged off and then advanced, the railway list being fairly well held except Reading, which was sold down on the possibility of its being affected by the strike. Before 11 o'clock the temper of the speculation became firm again and an advance of 1/4@1/4 per cent. was recorded, the latter in Sugar, but shortly after that hour a drive was made on Distilling by selling orders which came from the West accompanied of meditated tariff changes less favorable than had been anticipated. The stock gave way to the extent of 214 per cent. and the rest of the general list fell off 1/40% per cent., General Electric and Sugar being most prominent in the decline. A slight rally followed but during the first part of the afternoon the market became heavy and still lower prices were made. The depression continued to the close, being broken semi-occasionally by slight rallies in the late dealings. The decline from the closing sales of Saturday ranged from 14@31% per cent., the latter in Cordage common, which was sold on reports that the reorganization committee's statement will be unfavorable to the interests of the common stockholders. Some few shares made gains on the day's transactions, including American Tobacco, 31/2; Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago, 2; Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Pittsburg & Western preferred, 11/2 per cent. The railway and miscellaneous bond market was irregular during the greater portion of the day, but closed strong with a decided upward tendency in prices. The plan for the issue of gold certificates by the clearing-house association will be put into operation next week, when certificates will be received from engravers. Government bonds were strong. State bonds were The following table, prepared by James E. Berry, Room 16, Board of Trade, shows the range of quotations:

A Busy Day on the Wholesale Streets

with Few Changes in Values.

The wholesale houses yesterday presented quite a busy appearance. The filling of orders brought in by the traveling salesmen

on Saturday and of mail orders, together with a number of buyers coming in on the morning trains, gave some snap to trade.

In prices changes were few. Provisions are moving out better as prices with each week decline. There is a little more activity to the hide market since prices became firmer.

Grocers report staple articles firm and in good request. Dry goods houses are doing more since the weather became cooler,

Poultry is weak at quotations. Eggs have an advancing tendency. Irish potatoes are selling freely, really good stock bringing best prices, but some inferior stock is selling as low as 55 cents per bushel. Sweet potatoes seldom sell as low as they do this season. Apples are selling fairly well, but really choice fruit ranges high.

There was a good attendance for Indianapolis yesterday on 'Change, and the bid-

Domestic Fertilizers Best. Correspondence Country Gentleman. Good chemical authority tells us that an acre of wheat yielding eighteen bushels of grain abstracts from the soil for the grain alone, to say nothing of the straw, the following amounts of important mineral elements: Phosphoric acid, 17 pounds; potash, 18; soda, 6; lime, 16; magnesia, 13; chlorine, 1; sulphuric acid, 2. Fractions are omitted for the sake of simplicity. Assuming these data to be approximately correct, how shall the farmer fertilize the soil in order to secure his amount of grain, prevent depletion, and at the same time do it in the most economical way? This is an important practical question, and the practical farmer desires a practical rather than a scientific answer. Are there domestic sources of these elements, and are they cheap or best? Animal manures, wood ashes, common salt, bones and land plaster will furnish all these elements (and more) in quantities ample for all the requirements of any crop.

Of these all but the salt and plasters are to be had from the farm. We contend, too, that they can be had in quantity great enough for the demand, at less cost than the equivalents can be bought for in the market. Wood ashes give us potash, soda, lime and magnesia; salt yields chlorine and seda; plaster supplies sulphuric acid and lime, and bones contain a high per cent. of phosphoric acid, to say nothing of other useful parts. To narrow it down still more, wood ashes and salt alone will insure a good yield of wheat on almost any medium farm land. Farms containing rough forest land have the source of ashes in ampie quantity. There is no better or more durable fertilizer than wood ashes. Salt is cheap, and almost all the Atlantic coast lands need it.

A very small application is enough. Animal manures, mixed with litter, refuse hay, sweepings, and the other waste materials about the place, ought to accumulate in great quantity. Careful husbanding of the domestic resources of manure will, in most cases, render the farmer independent of the factories. These are best, cheapest, most durable and most satisfactory.

More, infinitely more, farm machinery rusts out from exposure than wears out in legitimate use.-Western Rural.

DEPRESSING

Immense Increase in Visible Forced Chicago Wheat Down.

Marked Reaction Followed on Stiff Buying and All Grain Closed Higher Than Saturday's Figures.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 .- The big increase in the visible supply, fully 1,000,000 bushels more than was expected, was a depressing factor in the wheat market to-day, but was partially offset by the reasonably liberal clearances. Increase on ocean passage was light at 688,000 bushels. Northwestern cars were light at 1,475, against 1,740 a year ago. Primary points had 816,000 bushels, against 1,263,000 a year ago. When the market had its break Singer became a buyer of May and Seaverns became a buyer of December. Many felt that the bottom had been reached and the buying was greatly improved. Compared with Saturday night the market is %@ 1/2c higher. Corn closed firm and without change after ruling weak for the greater part of the day. Provisions were very weak, but recovered toward the close some portion of an early heavy decline.

Wheat at the opening was about 4c higher than Saturday's closing, became weak and prices declined %c, railled %c, receeded 4c, advanced 4c and closed within %c of top figures. The stronger opening was influenced by better English cables, and the market weakened on the prospects of a rather liberal increase in the visible supply as shown by the early postings. But there was no wheat of consequence pressing for sale and a firm feeling developed.

Corn at the start was a little firmer, room traders buying, anticipating that wheat would do better. But early strength was of short duration, as the offerings increased and the price gradually sagged down 1/2c, the bearish attitude of shippers and receivers, together with the bright, cool weather, being too much for the bulls. The market had little support for a while, wheat selling off. Anticipated larger receipts also added weakness to the situation. At the decline there was some good buying to cover shorts, and the price rallied kc, and at the close had gained 1604c. There was a moderate trade in oats and a weak feeling. Prices receded %c early, but later, when the other grains rallied, oats followed, and prices reacted %@1/20 and closed steady. In provisions there was some firmness early on lighter hog receipts than expected, and better prices at the yards. The offerings began at once, and, as on previous bulge to $12.2214, and a rally of 20c, to $12.521/2 for January, at the close. January lard sold at 7.82% to 7.60c, and rallied to 7.65c. January ribs sold from 6.70c to 6.40c. closing at 6.47%c. There was a fair business in vessel room. the lines taking part of the grain offered at 2c for wheat and 1%c for corn to Buffalo. Estimated receipts for to-morrow are: Wheat, 270 cars; corn, 600 cars; oats, 295 cars; hogs, 18,000. Leading futures ranged

Feminine Dairy Wisdom.

Dorothy Tucker, in Farm Journal. Now is a good time to begin to churn the cream sweet if you have not already done so. There will then be no annoyance in ripening it, as the temperature is apt to vary more than during the summer. The prospect is now that good butter will bring a better price than it has for years. It is a good time to be converted to winter dairying, but don't expect your cows to give you lots of beautiful butter all winter if they are kept in the barnyard shivering at a strawstack.

Don't allow the cows or young stock to run down on frost-bitten grass. Better begin to feed early and do not allow the milk flow to lessen If the cow kicks when you milk her, see if her teat is not sore before you break the milking stool on her for being an ill-natured brute. Make the cows comfortable and happy and they will return more for the sam amount of feed than if shivering, dirty and uncomfortable. Try it and see if you are not fully convinced. Clean stables make clean cows and clean,

There is no finer crop for milch cows than oats in the sheaf, or oats and peas, The crop is easy to grow, easily cured, very productive and a grand producer of milk. The make-up of the cow by which she brings her food into her mouth the second time to chew it as cud before it has passed to the digestive organs, enables her to work up every portion of the crop. It is a grand milk maker. The best way to keep dairy utensils clean is to first rinse in cold water. This will loosen all the particles of milk, cream and casein, then use hot water with a little sal soda or something of the kind, rinse again and wipe dry with a perfectly clean cloth.

How to Keep Frost Out of the Cellar. J. J. H. Gregory, in Grange Homes. It has been my plan to keep frost out of my vegetable cellar by keeping a lighted kerosene stove there during the coldest nights. I began this plan about a dozen years ago and it has worked well. I use one of the largest patterns, as my cellar is a large one. If a farmer has no kerosene stove at hand, on an emergency he can raise the temperature of his cellar from near freezing to 70 degrees in a few minutes by saturating a dozen old newspapers with kerosene and burning these in coal hods, two at a time. Have the kerosene poured on them just sufficient to saturate. By using two hods the unconsumed fragments in the one fire can be put in the other before it is lighted, which will insure there being no fire there when repacked with paper. The precaution needed is to have a clear space above and around the hods of six feet and be sure that there is no fire left in the hod, and that its temperature is not at ignitish heat when pouring the kerosene on the paper. A quart used in this way will in a few minutes raise the temperature of a cellar of average size thirty or more degrees. It is a dangerous plan in the hands of a careless man. but a careful one may be able sometimes to save himself from a loss of hundreds of dollars by its timely use.

Sowing Clover. Philadelphia Inquirer.

When you come to the time of sowing clover do not go by any arbitrary rule as to the amount of seed. The amount needed for an acre depends upon the soll and the time of sowing. If all the seeds grow there is enough seed in three quarts to make a fine stand. Probably a less amount would be sufficient if this could be insured, but it must be remembered that even under the best conditions all the seeds do not germinate. Many plants fall to get rooted, and of those which do start a great number are afterwards killed by heat and drouth frost and insects. The later one sows the more seed will be needed, as the soil is not so favorable for germination as it is earlier. Many farmers use only a bushel to eight acres, and they wonder why they do not have a full stand The reason is that they had not enough seed to satisfy all the losses and yet leave enough to produce the stand. A bushel to four acres is a safer allowance, although that may be a little more than is often needed. Perhaps a bushel to five acres is as near as we can get for the average land.

A good and easy methed to mend small tears in an umbrella is to lay the ragged edges together as closely as possibly and then stick a bit of court-plaster over the tear on the under surface of the covering.
